25 or More to Washington for Millwood Case

Southwest Arkansas is assured of 25 and possibly 30 personal appearances before the Rivers and Harbors Review Board of the Corps of Engineers in Washington, D. C., Wednesday April 25, when the review agency hears the case prepared by the Southwest Arkansas Water District for a "wet" Millwood Dam.

Congressman Oren Harris' proposed compromise plan for a "wet" Millwood will be supported with briefs and testimony by the water district, which earlier this month obtained the endorsement of the Red River Valley Association. L. R. Matthias, Shreveport executive vice-president of Red River, will be among those making appearances.

Opposed to the Southwest Arkansas Water District's position will be a delegation of upstream interests supporting the Corps of Engineers' regional report in favor of a "dry" Millwood. This is the main point of contention, both factions agreeing on the reduction in size of the original Millwood and the inclusion of six upstream dams in the overall flood-control program for Little River Valley.

The majority of the 25 assured representatives will go to Washington either by air or train, Tuesday morning. Pullman accommodations have been arranged for Texarkana and Hope men on the Missouri Pacific train through here at 8:45 Sunday night. Some delegates from both cities, however, will pass up the train schedule in favor of air, catching their plane at Shreveport at 10 Monday night. All will meet in Washington Tuesday morning for last-minute plans for the public hearing, scheduled at 11 Wednesday morning.

Here are the delegations: HOPE — Mayor H. M. Olsen, Alderman Homer Beyerley, W. H. Gunter, Sr., George W. Peck, Ray Turner, Chamber of Commerce Secretary B. N. Holt, W. S. Atkins, Chancellor James H. Pilkinton and Vincent Foster — a total of 9. Three others may possibly go, Arch Wylie, Norman Moore, County Judge U. G. Garrett.

TEXARKANA — Charles Conway, president of the Southwest Arkansas Water District; Mayor A. P. Miller of Texarkana, Texas; Pierson Walsh, president of Texarkana Chamber of Commerce, and L. E. Gilliland, secretary-manager; Robert Lowe, Josh Morris, Jr., Terry Hunnicksen, and J. Q. Mahaffey, editor of Texarkana Gazette, who is already in the national capital — a total of 8. ASHDOWN — Ernest Cowling, A. G. Ball, Jim Shaver, J. H. Welch and E. C. Cobb — a total of 5, and they are planning to drive through this week-end. LEWISVILLE — F. D. Burton, W. R. L. Searcy, Jr. MAGNOLIA — Chamber of Commerce Secretary-Manager John Conner, and Henry Whitley, treasurer of the Southwest Arkansas Water District. They will take a plane from Magnolia.

WILTON — James Gunter.

Progress on River Problem Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Excellent progress on the Old River closure project — aimed at preventing the Mississippi River from changing its course in Louisiana — was reported yesterday by Maj. Gen. John R. Hardin of the Army Engineers.

Gen. Hardin, president of the Mississippi River Commission, told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing that work on the project is on schedule and well within cost estimates. Work began last year.

Hardin also testified on three projects in Arkansas. They concerned St. Francis River, lower White River and lower Arkansas River.

Regarding the various projects, Hardin testified: Memphis harbor — He could use $600,000 more than the million dollars recommended by the budget; St. Francis River — Could use not more than 3½ million dollars, compared with the budget figure of $2,954,000;

Lower White River — Couldn't use more than the $350,000 asked by the budget;

Lower Arkansas River — could use about $800,000, compared with budget figure of $500,000.

Olin Brint in Race for County Judge

The Hope Star today was authorized to announce the candidacy of Olin Brint for the office of Hempstead County Judge. In making this announcement Mr. Brint issued the following:

"After much thought and a great deal of encouragement, I have decided to enter the race for Hempstead County Judge.

"I was born at Spring Hill and have lived all my 41 years in that community. I am married and have five sons, my father is O. O. Brint and I'm a brother of Tommy Lee Brint.

"I have farmed all my life and am now engaged in both farming and raising livestock.

"Never before have I sought a public office. I feel I am fully qualified to handle the duties of the office of County Judge. The only thing I have to say is that I'll do what's right for the benefit of all and not any particular persons or group of persons.

"During the next few months I shall make every effort to see all the voters in Hempstead. Until then I solicit your support in my behalf."

Dreams of Prisoners of War Are Haunting Things — Some Soon Forget, Others Never

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The dreams of war prisoners are haunting things. Because they can do little but dream and wait, their dreams have an intensity beyond the dreams of ordinary people. They dream of love and money, and power, and food—but mostly food.

Many prisoners of war, when their nightmare ordeal is over and they return to peacetime living, forget the dreams they once found refuge in.

But not Gil Bloom, who for 15 months as a prisoner of the Germans dreamed constantly of food. But let's tell his story from the beginning.

Gil, a tall, powerfully built private from South Orange, N. J., joined the U. S. Rangers shortly after the abortive raid on Dieppe. He himself fought at Gafsa in Tunisia, Gela in Sicily, Salerno

$25 Million Cut From U. S. Propaganda

BY WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today cut $25 million dollars from President Eisenhower's request for the government's overseas propaganda program.

It also refused to approve money sought by the Justice Department to build two new prisons and criticized a State Department proposal to buy an unspecified number of "executive wastebaskets" at $27 each.

The committee said it "would be a wasteful aberration" to give the U. S. Information Agency the entire $35 million requested for the bookkeeping year starting July 1.

The 110 millions it recommended for USA—which handles the propaganda program—is $22,063,370, more than the agency requested this year.

The committee approved the full amount sought for USIA radio broadcasting programs, known as the Voice of America, but specifically rejected a request for $3,790,500 to fit out an aircraft carrier for use as a floating theater equipped to show Cinerama, a new movie technique.

The USIA funds were included in a $451,367,372 bill to finance the State and Justice departments, the judiciary and the USIA. The committee's recommendations are subject to action by the full House and Senate. House consideration is scheduled for next week.

The total recommended is $36,802,448 less than Eisenhower sought for all the agencies but is $46,794,137 more than they received for the current year.

The State Department's budget was cut $9,700,548. Included in its allotment of $171,506,737 was $33,830,875 for payment of the U. S. share of expenses of international organizations, mainly the United Nations, $1,906,000 for the U. S. — Mexico Boundary and Water Commission; and two million for work on the Rama road linking Central America with the United States.

The Justice Department was allotted $215,905,000, a cut of $19,915,000 from Eisenhower's requests. The FBI was granted the entire $95,510,000 it requested.

Youth Has Faith in His Mother

KIRKLIN, Ind. (AP) — Fearing her 19-year-old son was in trouble when he failed to return home by 4 a. m., Mrs. William H. Evans began touring country roads near her rural residence.

After covering many miles, she came to a bridge with fresh sign marks at the approach and found the car of her son, Harry, overturned in the dry creek bed, out of sight from the road.

Mrs. Evans called down and got the reassuring answer:

"I knew you'd come, Mom, but it sure took you a long time."

The youth was not believed injured seriously despite seven hours under the wrecked car.

Crawfis Says Resignation Turned Down

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Hospital Supt. Ewing H. Crawfis said yesterday that twice in the past three months — apparently since he has been under attack by Gov. Orval Faubus — the hospital Board of Control turned down his offers to resign.

Dr. Crawfis and an assistant, Dr. Joe Parker, head of the hospital's Benton unit, also confirmed that they were considering quitting to take jobs at Cleveland, Ohio, mental hospital.

Both said they hadn't made up their minds.

Dr. Crawfis' statement that the board had rejected his proffered resignations was something of a surprise in view of the fact that Faubus has made it clear that he wouldn't be unhappy if the superintendent quit. Faubus appointed a majority of the board members.

The board met yesterday but resignations weren't discussed.

Dr. Crawfis, Dr. Parker and Administrator Kenneth Newman, who has submitted his resignation, discussed charges that Faubus has made in connection with certain phases of hospital operation.

Dr. Parker denied specifically that dairy farm operations were unsanitary. He said health authorities had approved the dairy. Discussion of another Faubus charge — that hospital barbers and beauticians served employees for pay when they should have been taking care of patients — was cut off by Dr. Euclid Smith of Hot Springs, a board member, who called the complaint a "penny nante affair."

Egypt Premier Flies to Meet With Arabs

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser was flying to Jidda today for a conference with two Arab sovereigns, King Saud of Saudi Arabia, and Imam Ahmed of Yemen according to the semi-official Egyptian Middle East News Agency.

Judda is a Saudi Arabian Red Sea port about 40 miles northwest of Mecca, the holy city of the Moslems.

The announcement came as U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld launched a final round of talks with Israeli officials on technical Palestine border questions before heading back to his Middle East headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon.

Less than 48 hours after a new, unconditional cease-fire agreement was ordered effective on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier, U. N. peace observers were back at the old grind investigating a complete violation.

The Egyptians said a 15-man Israeli patrol invaded the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip yesterday and fired on a post near Deir el Ballah. A spokesman said the Egyptian detachment suffered no casualties and did not return the fire.

In Jerusalem, Israeli authorities denied the charge.

The Israelis told of a non-combatant on the Israel-Jordan frontier, whose pacification is another job for Hammarskjöld's peace mission. Israelis said a group of armed Jordanians opened fire inside Israeli territory last night at an Israeli military car in the Beit Guvrin area of the Judean Hills and the Israelis returned the fire.

Hammarskjöld announced yesterday that Egypt and Israel had told him they had issued orders to their forces to abide by the new cease-fire agreement. Both sides had agreed to a cease-fire more than a week ago but had reserved the right to act in self-defense.

The main interest will be in the Kefauver-Stevenson contest. Neither has been in Alaska to campaign, but both have proved popular on previous visits. Clubs in support of each have engaged in only moderate activity.

National interest in the territory's elections has been increased in recent years by the accuracy of the northerners' political adage: "As Alaska goes, so goes the nation."

The preference primary is being held for the first time under an act of the 1955 Legislature. The presidential preference ballot. Presumably it will check any national committee members, so each voter will have to ask for the Republican or Democratic ballot. Presumably I will check any "switch" of voters to the other party in an attempt to help or sink a favorite.

Disciples Against All Gambling

ROGERS, Ark. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit gambling in any form in Arkansas got the approval today of the state convention of the Disciples of Christ.

The convention is scheduled to close tonight.

Yesterday the organization of Disciples of Christ — known also as the Christian Church — adopted a resolution urging candidates of public office not to stir up "fear and hatred" by using issues which "divide one race from the other."

Instead, the Disciples said in the resolution, candidates should discuss the "vital issues confronting all citizens regardless of race."

The resolution called for "orderly compliance" with the U. S. Supreme Court's racial integration rulings.

The Rev. James W. Rainwater of Blytheville was elected president for the 1957 convention, which will be held at Hot Springs.

In other convention action, the Rev. Kenneth L. Teegarden, pastor of First Christian Church, Fort Smith, was elected president of the Arkansas Christian Missionary Society Board of Managers.

Other new officers of the board are: The Rev. Edward L. Weinrich, pastor of First Christian Church, North Little Rock, vice president; the Rev. Edmund O. Ponderton, pastor of First Christian Church, secretary; and Raymond Burks of Hot Springs, treasurer.

The Rev. B. H. Armstrong of Scott became the first Negro to be elected to the board of managers.

Officers of the Women's Christian fellowship include Mrs. James W. Rainwater, Blytheville, president; Mrs. Oller Adams, Hope, first vice president; Mrs. R. W. Jeter, Gould, second vice president; and Mrs. George Taylor, North Little Rock, secretary.

Convention officials described registration at this year's meeting as the largest of the 74 with 1,674 delegates.

Crews Rescue 3 Miners Trapped for 44 Hours

SUNNYSIDE, Utah — Rescue crews freed today three men entombed for up to 44 hours in a coal mine cave-in.

Workmen continued efforts to reach a fourth man also caught in the avalanche of rock and stone. It was not known whether he still is alive.

The rescuer miners, trapped when the roof of the mine collapsed Wednesday at 1:40 p. m., lay pinned beneath mining machinery without food or water during their entombment.

Rescuers first reached LaVell Golding, 42, father of four from Wellington, Utah, at 4 a. m. They next plucked out Joe Archuleta, 43, Dragoon, father of two, at 5:55 a. m.

The third out, at 8 a. m., was Lloyd Allen Heath, 36, Sunnyside, the father of five. The remaining miner is Joseph Otterstrom, 58, father of seven, also from Sunnyside.

The mine, owned by Kaiser Coal Co., is 125 miles southeast of Salt Lake City and 25 miles east of Price.

"I thought they would never get me," Heath said as rescuers brought him from the mine tunnel, which runs laterally into a mountain.

"I prayed all the time. I was under the coal. When I heard them take the other two out, Golding and Archuleta, I prayed all the harder."

Doctors quickly checked the three after workmen hustled them to the Sunnyside Hospital. They reported them all in good condition.

Golding and Archuleta huddled beneath a loader machine. Heath dived for shelter beneath the boom of the continuous miner machine.

"Tons of coal came falling down on the boom and I saw it falling all around me," Heath said.

"And then everything was quiet. Then I started to pray. I didn't think I had any chance of living at all. I had no idea how long I was under the coal."

"Then I slept for awhile and then I was awakened by a tapping sound and I knew it must be somebody coming to my rescue."

Golding and Archuleta, beneath the loader machine, could move only a few inches. Doctors fed them hot soup and milk as they arrived at the hospital.

Happy, smiling families gathered at their bedsides. But the family of Otterstrom, still missing waited-just waited.

The rescue crews crawled along the top of the jumbled rock mass which choked the tunnel when it fell. When the workmen found where the men lay buried, they drilled down and eventually uncovered the grimy men.

SUNNYSIDE, Utah (UP) — Three Utah miners — tired and hungry — came "back to life" today from the coal-walled cavern two miles inside the Kaiser No. 2 mine here where they had been trapped by a cave-in Wednesday and once "given up as dead."

Eden, Khrushchev Talking Over Middle East

BY JAMES E. KING

LONDON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev opened full-scale talks today with Prime Minister Eden on the explosive situation on the Middle East.

Bulganin raised his hat and Khrushchev put on his best smile for a crowd of 250 as they left their Claridges Hotel headquarters. The crowd replied with silent stares.

About 7,000 persons lined the two-mile route from the hotel to No. 10 Downing St., Eden's official residence. So hushed was the crowd that the whirr of the tires on the Russians' big car could be heard.

The Kremlin chiefs were accompanied by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, already in London for the five-power disarmament negotiations, and Jacob Malik, the Russian ambassador to Britain. British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd sat in with Eden.

Both morning and afternoon sessions were scheduled today, for a total of almost five hours of talking. Both sides agreed to keep the talks secret, and to put out communiqués at the end of each day's sessions.

Eden expected to get down to cases at once on the explosive Middle East situation, where Communist arming of Egypt threatens to upset the balance of power between Israel and the Arab states.

The British fear this may touch off big-scale fighting which would ultimately involve Communist and Western military might in a blood-curd of mutual destruction.

Khrushchev and Bulganin were expected to counter with claims that the progressive rearming of West Germany by the Western Powers poses an even greater threat to world peace.

Diplomatic sources said Eden would propose that the United Nations "both Communist and Western arms" to the Arab and the Jews.

The informants said the idea probably stemmed from U. S. British exchange, President Eisenhower, has suggested a Middle East solution through the U. N.

Khrushchev's forthright admission that there could be no real winner in an atomic world was a Soviet Embassy lunch came yesterday. Eden and other British political leaders were present.

By Soviet standards this was a sensational facing of the facts. The party line for home consumption has always been that capitalism alone—but not communism—would be crushed in any future global outbreak.

The switch in the official line was not concealed from the Soviet people. Moscow radio, carrying Khrushchev's speech in full, had home service newscast this morning.

Big Wedding Show Moves to Missouri

By RNST B. VACCARO

INDPNDNC, Mo. (AP) — Tranquil, old-fashioned, independent takes over today where Monoco left off—as a center of romantic interest for people who would over.

Margaret Truman, daughter of the former President, and her own particular prince, a handsome, urbane New York newsmen, are the principals in the second of the week's big weddings.

The first, between film star Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco, is over. Tomorrow afternoon, in a far more subdued atmosphere and in a vastly simpler setting, Margaret exchanges vows with Clifton Daniel Jr., assistant foreign editor of the New York Times.

Guests started to arrive today for the wedding at the tiny, ivy-clad Episcopal Church, a few blocks from the old Truman family home on North Delaware Street.

where "a million to one" — was with Lavelle M. Golding, Lloyd A. Heath and Joseph A. Archuleta. Attendants at the hospital where they were taken after their ordeal of 38 to 42 hours said they were "okay and in good spirits."

As the three survivors came out, their section foreman—Joe Osterstrom, 58-year-old father of seven children—was still "missing." A spokesman said "we don't know yet what happened to him."

Searchers, however, feared that the luck that blessed Golding, Heath and Archuleta had "missed" Osterstrom and he had been crushed or suffocated under the tons of rock and coal that cascaded into the mine's "left 13" entry at 1:40 p. m. MST, Wednesday.

Yesterday afternoon, rescue workers were so convinced that hope for all four was gone that they used dynamite — material never employed — if there is a chance someone is below the debris of a cave-in — to flight their way into the clogged entry.

Families of the entombed men, accepting what they considered the final word, had left the "sunny-side tunnel portals and gone home to prepare memorial services — or await recovery of the bodies.

Then, about 1:30 a. m. today, the 80 man crew blasting atop the rubble heard a faint tapping—the time-honored distress signal of underground miners.

All work halted momentarily until the direction of the signals was determined.

Then, with more care than ever, the rescuers mucked through rock and coal until they could shout to the men and hear their replies.

Golding, 39, father of four, identified himself. Next, Archuleta, 43, father of one. Finally, Heath, 40, father of three. The call for Osterstrom; there was only silence.

By 4 a. m., Golding had been pulled through the narrow emergency tunnel dug to the working face of the entry where falling slabs had arched over the front of the "compartment" to protect the men.

Golding was carefully hauled out on a "manycar" through a safety exit and taken to Permanente hospital at nearby Dragerton. Attendants said they were permitted only to say his condition was "good and 'spirits' high." He was not permitted to talk to newsmen immediately.

Archuleta was out at 6:05 a. m. and in the hospital at short time later while rescue workers — shoveling by hand and with a mechanical mucker — cleared the way to release Heath. They reached Heath about 3:45 a. m. and he regained the surface, his first glimpse of daylight in two days, about 7:30 a. m.

Meanwhile, word of the miraculous rescue flashed to the homes in Sunnyside, Dragerton and Wellington where the 200 men who labor in the Sunnyside mines live. Families rushed back to the tunnel and to the hospital for tear-spattered reunions.

Only in the homes of Osterstrom and his children was there sadness.

of. And mountains of snowy ice cream," he tried. "And I made up my mind that if I ever got out alive, I'd spend the rest of my life surrounded by steaks and ice cream."

To escape the onrushing Russians, his captors started Gil and the other prisoners on a march across Germany in mid-January of 1945. They walked 700 miles before American troops liberated them in April.

"We had to scavenge what we could from the countryside," he recalled. "There were no meals. We started with 800 men, and there were only 350 to 400 left when we were freed. The rest had dropped out."

Gil's weight had dropped from about 175 pounds to 98 pounds. He fainted in the chowline waiting for his first real meal and spent weeks in a hospital.

"When I came home food was a passion with me," he said. "I couldn't get enough of it."

He went back into his old business as an electrical contractor. But Gil couldn't get that wartime dream out of his head. He wanted to be surrounded by steaks.

Today he is, Gil took his capital and, teaming up with a Greenwich Village restaurateur named Johnny Johnston, opened a steak and chop house called "The Charcoal Room" at 45th St. and 2nd Ave., not far from the United Nations.

The place boomed from the start. One gimmick that helped: Patrons were allowed to don a chef's cap and cook their own steaks.

"People like to show off a little," explained Gil tolerantly.

Now that his dream has come true Gil is as cheerful as a child with a new tricycle.

"I like to see people happy, and they're never happier than when they're eating," he said. "There's only one road to happiness—through the stomach. I found that out."

Gil admires a good trencherman and says heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano is the best he knows.

"I can go two rounds at the table with him and that's about all," he admitted. "Rocky can put down a four-pound steak and then call for lamb chops. But I get filled up on a two-pound steak plus a dish of ice cream covered with chocolate syrup and whipped cream."

But achieving a dream always carries with it a penalty. Gil, surrounded by steaks and ice cream, now weighs 215 pounds and is considering going on a diet.

DOROTHY DIX

Young Mother is Friendless
Circus Training is Tough
Installment-plan Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a happily married woman of 28 with a wonderful husband and a son of 5. The only flaw in my life is that I don't have girl friends. I want to be chums with the young mothers in the neighborhood, but can't make the grade through I've lived in the same house three years. I get along well with children. I formerly taught kindergarten, make friends readily with older folks, try my hardest to be friendly. Please help me.

Dear Susan: You have me stumped. Young mothers are usually the friendliest of people, since they are tied down by their children and welcome any companions in the same boat. Someone would have to see the situation at first hand to explain the mystery.

You certainly sound like an attractive, cherry, helpful addition to any group. Why not turn your kindergarten training to account? Many of your neighbors would doubtless welcome an afternoon off to attend a matinee, get a new hair-do, or shop. You might suggest a community baby-sitting project, with some mothers minding the young while the rest gallivant.

Be sure the rest of the ladies do their share of work; as the most experienced member of the group you might wind up with all of it. This, of course, would make you very popular, but would defeat, rather than further, your scheme.

You might anticipate your son's activities and offer to be a den mother for cub scouts. There are never enough women to take on this job. Here you would have a chance to come in contact with other mothers and perhaps your long-sought girl friend would appear.

Dear Dorothy Dix: For three years I have been entranced by the circus and would like to join it year after graduation. My parents are against it but my teacher says I should be allowed to choose my own profession. I have artistic ability and my folks want me to go to art school and find a career in that field. I know I have to do some training for my circus life, but I'm willing to make every effort.

Dear Patty: Undoubtedly you would make a pretty picture in pink tights. However, a circus is made up of people with exceptional abilities. A circus is not a school; it doesn't take trainees but the finished product.

I wonder how many of you teenagers who aspire to careers in the circus, movies or theater really would be willing to undergo the gruelling training and long hours that go into the making of an artist in any field.

Perhaps you'll do better illustrating circus life than trying to be a part of it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Rob and I have gone steady for three years. We get along fine and have but one cause for disagreement. He doesn't want to get married because he isn't making enough money yet and I think we're foolish to keep on postponing our wedding date. We're both in our thirties. He's afraid to take a chance. I feel anything's better than wasting our lives.

Dear Dinny: Caution in its place is an admirable thing, but I agree that your Robert is overdoing it. If he has a good job, with a fair assurance of continued income, he can do what the majority of Americans do—buy on the installment plan. In moderation financing a future is good, sometimes it's the only way one can get a future. It doesn't take a fabulous amount to set up housekeeping; surely he has some money saved.

THE LONG BODY
by Helen McCloy

THE STORY: Doubts assail Alice Hazard after she finds that a young woman, Cristina Lash, was a mysterious secret of her husband's before his death. Was her husband John involved with the woman, or was he trying to protect Malcolm, their son? Alice awakens in the night to find that she has been sleep-walking and has gone through the woods to the Lash home.

CHAPTER X

Alice's house was dark in the moonlight; not one lighted window. Gravel hurt her feet as she crossed the drive to the terrace. The front door was standing open to the night. She must have left it so.

She shut the door quietly. She dared not turn on a light. She mustn't wake Malcolm. He would worry if he knew about this. She mounted the stairs and slipped down the hall to her own room, soundless as a shadow.

Alice shut the bedroom door, crossed the room and slid under the welcoming warmth of the electric blanket.

There was a clock on the bedside table beside the small, shaded lamp. A utilitarian clock with an alarm. In case she were alone in the house and had to make a train early in the morning.

Now, as she turned and groped for the switch of the lamp, her glance fell on the radium dial. It was ten minutes of two and she had gone to sleep at eight. When had she left her bed? A few minutes ago? An hour?

She would never know unless something she had done during those six hours had consequences that survived to plague her. For nearly six hours she had been another person who had no place in Alice Hazard's waking life or memory.

For nearly six hours she had been possessed by powers of darkness.

Alice woke to the dismal sound of steadily dripping rain. One glance at the water-soaked, winnowed garden beyond the windows made the thought of going outdoors uninviting. It was not really cold indoors, but it was dank as if the whole house were at the bottom of a well.

She took as long as possible over the business of bathing and dressing. She chose a warm dress of slate blue wool that she could wear all day, even at the Cushings' dinner table, with a necklace of amethyst quartz. Her breakfast was a cup of coffee in the living room before the fire. Mrs. Hite said that Malcolm had gone out before luncheon and not returned. It was now one o'clock.

"I'm going for a walk," Mrs. Hite. If Mr. Hazard comes in, please tell him that I'll meet him at the Cushings at six."

She knew now what she must do without waiting another moment.

The little cottage loomed out of the mist as suddenly as a mirage. She hurried down the path to the front door before her resolution had time to falter and rang the bell.

A chair scraped. Quick, loud steps came toward her and the door opened. Cristina herself stood there, apparently dressed for a party in a soft silk dress of dark gold printed with a splashy pattern of scarlet and black that made her look tawny as a tiger.

"Do come in, Mrs. Hazard. I've been expecting you."

An oval gold locket hung from a narrow black-velvet ribbon around her neck. On her wrist, another black band held a gold watch set with rubies and diamonds. Her smile was enigmatic tinged with derision.

"Who told you I was coming?"

"Malcolm. He stopped in for a drink on his way to the Cushings."

Alice followed Cristina into the small living room. It was a standardized decorator's job, paneled in knotty pine, furnished in maple and blue-green chintz with a carpet to match.

Alice looked about for some of those personal possessions that reveal so much—a book, a photograph, a phonograph with records—but she saw nothing that couldn't have been part of an advertising living room until her glance came to the rifle that lay in a gun rack on the wall. It seemed as out of place as Cristina's dress, a handsome-looking weapon, with stock of polished figured walnut and barrel of oiled, deadly steel.

Cristina's gaze followed her visitor's.

"Yours?" said Alice.

"My landlord's," answered Cristina. "He never rents after Labor Day. He comes here himself in late fall to shoot deer. I'm afraid of the gun—it's loaded. Do sit down," Mrs. Hazard.

Alice took an armchair beside

Mid-South Property
Valued $12 Million

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Property valuation of Mid-South Gas Co. yesterday was set at $12,500,000 by the Arkansas Public Service commission. The figure was for rate-making purposes, but the company testified it would not ask for an increase.

The valuation was a compromise. The company had asked the commission to set the figure at $13,657,711 but the commission held that figure was too high.

Although Mid-South has paid no dividends to its stockholders since $31,500 was passed in 1951, the company stressed it would not increase its rates other than what might be allowed by an escalator clause in its tariff. The company is allowed to raise or lower its rates correspondingly to offset any the cold, neglected hearth. "My father's upstairs," went on Cristina. "And the nurse has gone, so we're quite alone."

"Miss Lash..."

"Won't you call me Cristina?"

"No."

War was declared. Cristina's smile flickered maliciously. "You don't like me, do you? Or rather you don't like me to be a friend of Malcolm's. I felt it yesterday. You're what they call an over-protective mother. And now I suppose you've come in this frightfully dated fashion to ask me to give him up. You needn't bother really. I have no designs on Malcolm. No honorable designs any way, and those are the only ones that would worry you."

Alice felt herself flush—she who had schooled herself for so many years to meet any social situation with aplomb.

"I haven't come about Malcolm alone," she said steadily. "How well did you know my husband?"

NOTICE TO
HEMPSTEAD VOTERS

This is to let the people of Hempstead County know that I am definitely still in the race for County Judge.

As most everyone knows I have been confined the last two weeks due to an accident, but am feeling much better. I am sure my friends and supporters will keep the good work going until I can get out, which I feel sure will only be a short time now.
